Fears for dedicated policing

A HAVERHILL county councillor has vowed to "fight the town's corner" amid fears its dedicated response police officers could be moved 18 miles away to Bury St Edmunds.

The draft proposal is causing disquiet among staff and a member of the police authority has already pledged to fight it if it becomes a definite plan.

Suffolk Police Authority considered a report at its meeting last month which proposed axing response bases across the county to create new district policing hubs in a bid to save cash.

One option under consideration would see Haverhill's response officers having to travel to Bury St Edmunds each day to receive their duties, before then returning to police the town.

County councillor Tim Marks, who is a member of the police authority, said further discussions would take place at the next authority meeting next Friday.

But he warned that if the Bury St Edmunds option was recommended, he would strongly oppose the move, which caused him "great concern".

BY JO DEEKS

He said: "The location of these response hubs had not yet been determined, but I would heartily object as a member of the police authority to this option. I would fight the corner for Haverhill, being the fifth largest town in Suffolk, it deserves better treatment than that.

"It might look good on paper, but I cannot see it working. The people who are working on it have obviously never travelled on the A143.

The paper before the Police Authority suggests cutting the county's 23 current response bases to develop a "more effective and efficient response police model".

Response policing currently costs the force £22 million a year in staffing expenses alone and, according to the report's authors, the purpose of the study is "to examine whether we have the right people, in the right place, at the right time".

Inspector Andrew Mason, Haverhill's sector commander, said the proposal was in its embryonic stages and he was unable to comment.

Jab success for teen girls

THOUSANDS of teenage girls have been given potentially life-saving protection against cervical cancer following a vaccination programme.

Carried out by Suffolk Community Healthcare (SCH), the programme began in September and has seen more than 3,000 Year 8 girls given the HPV vaccine – hitting the 90 per cent uptake target set by the Department of Health.

Following this success, SCH has now created a dedicated team to deliver the routine programme. In addition, there will be a catch-up programme, which will see an extra 7,000 girls in Years 10 and 11 immunised from September onwards. This will take place in addition to the 3,000 plus Year 8 girls who are due to start receiving the vaccination course in the autumn term.

Dot Cordle, Head of Universal Children and Family Services with Suffolk Community Healthcare, said: “We are really delighted that more than 3,000 girls across Suffolk have already received this vital vaccine, which will protect them against the commonest cause of cervical cancer for many years to come.

“But it is important that even more young women are offered the vaccine. Over the coming year, our dedicated HPV vaccination team will be carrying out the routine programme as well as a catch-up programme which will see an additional 7,000 offered this important vaccine – potentially saving hundreds of lives.”

Brian Keeble, consultant in public health medicine at NHS Suffolk, said: “We are delighted that the uptake for the HPV vaccine has been so high.”

Stepping out: Pastor David Wiffen has organised a charity walk.

Raise cash on walk in country

A MINISTER is inviting people to join him on a marathon hike around the local countryside to raise money for two charities.

Pastor David Wiffen, of the Downs Baptist Church, has organised the Countryside Circular Footpath walk around Haverhill, which starts at 9.30 am on Saturday. Those taking part can choose to walk, jog or run the full 25 miles, or take a route of 5, 9 or 18 miles to suit their fitness, age and enthusiasm. All routes will start and finish at the East Town Park, Coupals Road, Haverhill.

Certificates recording distance and time will be awarded. The entrance fees and sponsorship money will be divided equally between Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy Research and the East Anglian Children's Hospices. For registration and sponsorship forms, call Nicola on (01440) 705294 (evenings) or e-mail DavidAWiffen@aol.com

Mr Wiffen said: “Why not extend your exercise and fitness routine and view the town from the fields and hills, hear the skylarks, the woodpeckers, catch sight of hares, and fallow deer, maybe, and enjoy hedgerow flowers with the brooks and streams.”

Jobs to go at security firm

SIX jobs will be lost in July at Haverhill-based building security system experts HID Global.

The company, which employs around 60 people in Haverhill, has twice moved to larger premises in the town and is currently based at a site just off the town's by-pass.

The HID group has 750 staff across Europe and Kate Burn, human resources manager, confirmed the job losses would be made as part of a review of its business practices.

She said: “We are constantly reviewing the structure of our business and it is also fair to say that as a company we continue to see year on year growth.”

Inquest into cell death

AN INQUEST will be held into the death of a prisoner found hanging in his cell at Highpoint Prison, Stradishall, almost two years ago.

Iqbal Khan's body was found at the Suffolk jail at 9.35am on May 30, 2007. An initial inquest into his death found he died from hanging and it was adjourned for a full hearing at a later date.

Anger over troupe trainer's sentence

LEADERS of three majorette troupes, swindled out of thousands of pounds by a disgraced majorette trainer from Haverhill, have hit out at the sentence she received.

The three Leeds troupes believe Jacqui Gehring should have received more than the six-month prison sentence suspended for a year, handed to her at Chelmsford Crown Court.

Gehring admitted stealing £3,600, which was intended to pay for caravan accommodation for majorettes taking part in a competition she was organising.

Gehring, 32, of Stanton Place, Haverhill, admitted three theft charges.

The court was told that she was jailed for nine months in 2001 for taking more than £5,000 from a Haverhill troupe.

Gehring appeared for sentencing for spending money belonging to Shardonday Twirling Majorettes in Hunslet, Leeds; All Stars in Armley; and Hunslet Carr Majorettes, which was supposed to pay for caravan accommodation for youngsters aged 4 to 17, taking part in a competition at Filey, North Yorkshire.

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

The event was cancelled and it was discovered that Gehring had spent much of the money.

Donna Broadbent, leader of Shardonday, said: “What Gehring has done has affected so many children and families.

“It's disgusting that she has stolen all three troupes' holiday money which everyone was so looking forward to.

“It's been so upsetting and distressing, especially when we have to pick up the pieces afterwards.”

The three Leeds troupes met Gehring when she was judging competitions for them. Around 180 majorettes from a total of five troupes agreed to take part in the Filey event, organised by Gehring.

The three Leeds troupes all sent their money directly to Gehring, but around two weeks before they were due to go last May, Steph Sherwood, head trainer of Leeds All Stars Majorettes, got a call.

Stole cash: Jacqui Gehring.

She said: “I received a phone call from Jacqui explaining that the campsite had been double booked and therefore it needed to be changed to a later date.

“She suggested October 2008 for the finals. I told her it wasn't her fault if it had been double booked, it's just one of those things.”

But suspicions were raised, the police were called and Gehring was charged with theft after being unable to account for more than £3,600.

Ms Sherwood said: “To us, it looks as if she has walked away with a much too light a sentence for what she's done. We feel she should not be allowed to run an organisation which is meant for children.”

Gehring appeared for sentence before Judge Anthony Goldstaub QC, who told her he would have sent her straight to prison had it not been for psychiatric reports. It is believed she has suffered from depression for years.

The prosecution said Gehring paid the money into her own bank account and spent some, so it was not there when payment was due.

As well as the suspended jail sentence, Gehring was banned from entering pubs, restaurants and nightclubs which serve alcohol for the next three months.

Her own majorette group, the Clacton Silver Supremes, had previously stated it would stand by Gehring.

She remains listed as head trainer on the club's website. It was not one of the three groups involved in the court case.

Man punched girl, 13, after 'obnoxious' taunts

BY JOHN GOODE

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A MAN has been given a suspended jail sentence for punching a 13-year-old girl and pushing her against a shop wall.

Painter and decorator Michael Murphy had been drinking on St Patrick's Day when he was abused by a group of youths and was hit on the head with a drinks can, magistrates heard.

He chased after the youths, who dispersed, and he ended up hitting the girl and pushing her against a wall.

She had to have an operation to straighten a broken nose and took five weeks off school after the incident, in Haverhill High Street.

Murphy, 48, of Salisbury Court, Haverhill, was given a four-month jail sentence suspended for a year by magistrates at Bury St Edmunds.

He was also ordered to carry out 150 hours of unpaid community work and pay £2,500 compensation to the girl. Murphy, who admitted causing actual bodily harm, was also ordered to pay £60 prosecution costs.

Emma Lister, prosecuting, said the incident happened at about 8pm on March 17. She said the victim, who cannot be identified for legal reasons, was aware of Murphy shouting loudly at the group she was with.

She said the boys in the group walked off, leaving her and two friends.

Murphy said: "I'll have one of you" and grabbed at one of her friends, who managed to get away before he punched the victim on the side of her head.

Miss Lister said the girl tried to get away into an alleyway next to the Argos store but Murphy grabbed the back of her head and pushed her into the wall.

She suffered injuries to her face and knee and had to undergo an operation to straighten her nose.

In court statements, the girl said the incident had given her nightmares and she was worried that she might have been scarred by the injuries.

She said it had changed her from being outgoing and sociable to being frightened to go out or answer the door of her own home.

Declan Gallagher, defence solicitor, said Murphy was remorseful for the incident, which happened after he had drunk about six pints at the town's Woolpack pub.

He said Murphy, a grandfather with no previous convictions, had suffered "obnoxious abuse" from the youths before he was struck on the head by a full soft drink can. He said the assault on the girl happened in "moment of madness".

Mr Gallagher said that since the incident Murphy had suffered from an "almost lynch-mob mentality" and photographs of the girl's injuries had been posted through his letter box.

Friends get in the saddle for 1,200-mile adventure

TWO friends are risking getting seriously saddle sore by riding from John O'Groats to Lands End in aid of a cancer charity.

Peter Bailey, 50, and Neil Huckle, 43, have been training with a coast-to-coast route across England, and will leave on Sunday, May 31, for the 1,200-mile sponsored cycle ride which they expect to take around 16 days to complete.

Their effort is in aid of Macmillan Cancer, for which Peter ran the London Marathon in 2000 after it looked after his wife Lisa's mother when she was ill.

Peter, of Henderson Close, Haverhill, is a director of a software development company in Cambridge, and Neil of Chapel Street, Steeple Bumpstead, runs his own document hosting company.

They met because their wives both run marathons together and have also worked together professionally.

All sponsorship will go to help Macmillan Cancer Support and by visiting the website www.mybumsnumb.com supporters can monitor the duo's daily progress, read information about the route, view photographs and add comments.

Store's car park plans put on hold

PLANS to change the layout of Sainsbury's Haverhill car park have been deferred by planners.

The supermarket giant applied to St Edmundsbury Borough Council to reconfigure the layout of the car park at its Haycocks Road store to improve traffic flow.

The council's development control committee was recommended to approve the plan, but decided against it and requested more information.

Cllr Gordon Cox objected to the plan, saying it did not go far enough to alleviate the problems associated with the main road entrance and exit from the store.

He said: "The problem, in my opinion, is the fact that this entrance also serves as the main exit and the tightness of the bend when entering the store site. The application goes no way in alleviating this problem."

But another application for the company to build a side extension on its premises to provide a home delivery service was approved, despite objections from nearby residents. Planning officers said an acoustic screen could help reduce noise.

Blooming bargains at garden market

GARDENERS will have a chance to stock on plants and shrubs this Sunday when the Haverhill in Bloom Committee holds its latest Gardener's Market on the town's Recreation Ground.

The event will take place from 9am to 2pm. There will also be a car boot sale.

New classes get children to dash for charity cash

CHILDREN will be urged to run, jump and skip as well as try a host of other fun activities this summer to keep them fit and raise charity cash.

Jolene Potgieter founder of FitFUN and a children's fitness instructor, will run after-school sessions at schools in the Haverhill area.

Children will also be encouraged to join in fundraising events for different charities.

Other activities include junior combat and circuits.

She said: "With so much concern over lack of child fitness and obesity, this is the perfect answer for parents to beat those concerns."

"At FitFUN children's energies are channelled into activities that give them confidence and self esteem."

"Learning the joys of exercise and movement as a child is a vital skill that will enable them to lead positive healthy futures."

"All our sessions ensure that children enjoy themselves so much, they keep coming back for more."

Ms Potgieter added: "No matter what their ability, children are able to express themselves through a fun-filled activity class, participating in activities that promote health."

She is hosting after-school clubs in schools from the summer term and in term breaks, for children aged 2 to 12, as well as holiday time workshops.

Queen revamp begins

WORK has begun on a £400,000 scheme to give Haverhill's Queen Street a makeover before a new Tesco store opens in the autumn.

The scheme is the result of a wide-reaching consultation period.

Shoppers are being called on to support local businesses while works are ongoing over the summer.

Although the road will be closed to vehicles for the duration of the work, it will remain open to pedestrians and all the shops will be open and trading as usual.

Newsletters giving updates on progress will be available through traders, who are being supported through the duration of the project by the Town Centre Manager, Tina Hanks.

Queen Street will provide a vital link between the new superstore and the existing high street shops.

The scheme is being carried out by contractors working for St Edmundsbury Borough Council, which will be doing everything possible to minimise disruption.

The work includes new paving and street surfaces, street furniture, lighting and the creation of an informal meeting place with seating and trees.

Volunteers young and old get dug in at school

CHILDREN, parents and teachers rolled up their sleeves to get down to some serious gardening work on Saturday morning.

Kedington Primary School's Diggers & Growers gardening club held another of their popular family gardening mornings, digging a few more patches for their vegetables, planting some shrubs in the wildlife area and doing some general tidying before the growing season really takes off in the coming months.

The club organised the morning with the school's Early Years department, who painted some fences and sheds and filled some new planters.

Invitations went out to all families at the school and there was a great response.

Tory MP becomes a friend of the union

AN MP has been along to see the benefits a new credit union is bringing to residents of the largest town in his constituency.

Richard Spring met Maria Mitchell, development officer for the Ipswich and Suffolk Credit Union, at its new base at the Centre for Voluntary Organisations in Lower Downs Slade, Haverhill. The ISCU is a financial co-operative, which helps members to save safely, budget ahead and obtain fair loans if needed.

Its aim is to help people in the local area, especially those with low income who are finding it difficult to open a bank account or who do not use mainstream banking for various reasons.

ISCU Haverhill is a new branch and it already has 19 members. They are looking for volunteers and local organisations to help them spread the word about its services to the community.

Mr Spring said: "The Ipswich & Suffolk Credit Union gives an excellent service to my constituents – providing a safe and secure place to save and borrow money to those for whom high street banks are not a viable option.

"I was very interested to hear how the ISCU is helping some of the most vulnerable people in society, in particular those who are struggling as a result of the credit crunch."

Great help: MP Richard Spring meets Maria Mitchell, of the new Haverhill credit union.

House closure order granted

POLICE have been granted a temporary closure order at a house preventing anyone other than the owner, his daughter or her boyfriend from entering the premises.

The order comes after complaints over anti-social behaviour at the address.

Laura Williams, 20, her father

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

Keith Williams and partner Damian Badcock are the only people permitted to enter the house at 5 Ashlea Close, Haverhill, where a closure order notice was served on Saturday.

Williams and Badcock appeared before magistrates at Bury St Edmunds on Monday, when magistrates agreed to adjourn the case until Wednesday, May 27, and continue the interim order on the premises in the meantime.

They ordered that only Badcock, Williams and her father were allowed into the premises.

Carly Williams, representing Suffolk police, asked magistrates to continue the order under the 2003 Anti-Social Behaviour Act.

Temporary fire station plan submitted

HAVERHILL will have a temporary fire station operating from Falconer Road for 18 months if a planning application is approved.

Change of use consent is sought for industrial buildings on the Lime Grove estate from St Edmundsbury Borough Council, while improvement work takes place to the permanent station.

A spokesman for Suffolk Fire Service said the work to the existing station in Ehringshausen Way, Haverhill, was part of a project to refurbish a number of stations in the county.

The spokesman said: "From recent experience when we carried out a similar refurbishment, we've found it's far more efficient to operate from another property close by than try to run a station around the works."

Private data put on internet

A POLICE authority has mistakenly published confidential data about complaints against police officers.

One senior Cambridgeshire officer accused of assaulting a blind man was named on the internet along with his victim – breaching the Data Protection Act.

Another woman whose husband was accused of downloading child porn was also identified.

Cambridgeshire Police Authority has apologised for publishing the names of complainants as well as the officers who stand accused.

The gaffe came to light after a Weekly News investigation led to the discovery of the information on the authority's website.

The complaints are among several which remain under investigation after being open for more than 120 days.

Issues were raised against a detective inspector about his handling of the detention of a man accused of making child porn images.

Another complaint was made against the same senior officer by a different person for "improper disclosure of sensitive information to a third party".

The officer is waiting to be interviewed as he is off sick.

A blind man accused a detective sergeant of pushing him and saying "he was not blind really".

The officer was also accused of failing to properly investigate an allegation of attempting to pervert the course of justice.

The complaints are to be finalised on the officer's return from a six-week course.

The report to the professional standards committee was to be looked at by the authority in secret at its meeting this week.

A spokeswoman for the police authority said the report was "briefly uploaded in error", and was removed as soon as it was found. She also said only a small number of people viewed the report before it was removed from the internet.

She said as a result the authority's systems are being reviewed and additional measures will be put in place to further protect privacy.

Pure pedal power for police patrols

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

POLICE officers will be out on their bikes patrolling a town's industrial area after two new bikes were bought by generous local businesses.

The Haverhill Safer Neighbourhood Team (SNT) was presented with the bikes on Tuesday, after IFF Haverhill, Halfords and Jocks Locks all chipped in to fund the purchases.

The bikes will primarily be used to increase patrolling of the industrial areas and so hopefully decrease industrial crime.

Inspector Andrew Mason, of Haverhill SNT, said: "A good deal of Haverhill is dominated by business and industry and the industrial areas can become quite isolated after businesses close for the day.

"The bikes will mean that we can easily patrol these areas and offer visible reassurance. They will also mean that we can further tackle any business crime that arises.

"We are very thankful to the three businesses that have donated the funding for the bikes.

"Within the last few months, we have visited nearly every single business in the Haverhill area and encouraged them to sign up to Police Direct, a high tech messaging service which sends the latest information about local crime by email, text or phone.

"We will have finished these visits by the end of the month and they have given us valuable insight into what the business community requires from the Haverhill SNT.

"We are now in the process of setting up an Industry Watch Scheme."

Aidan Flack, manager of Halfords in Haverhill, said: "We were happy to contribute to the cost and to supply the bikes to the Haverhill Safer Neighbourhood Team.

"They provide a valuable service to the local community and we wanted to assist them in getting around the industrial areas more easily.

"We hope that the new bikes will have a positive impact on the local businesses of Haverhill and will help to improve the everyday patrolling of the Haverhill Safer Neighbourhood Team."

Special service for Land Girls

SUFFOLK women who served in the Women's Land Army and Timber Corps during and after the Second World War can take part in a special event this weekend.

They have been invited by The Lord Lieutenant of Suffolk, Lord Tollemache, to attend an Evensong celebration service at St Edmundsbury Cathedral on Sunday.

Last year, the Government awarded surviving former members of the Women's Land Army and Timber Corps a specially-designed badge of honour and certificate.

Lord Lieutenants were then asked to consider organising a local event for Land Girls to commemorate their service.

The event provides a unique opportunity for the WLA and the community to affirm its recognition of the part played during the Second World War and its aftermath.

Lord Tollemache will be joined by the High Sheriff of Suffolk, James Buckle, along with the mayors of Ipswich and St Edmundsbury.

The chairmen of Suffolk County Council and Babergh, Forest Heath, Mid Suffolk, and Suffolk Coastal district councils will also be in attendance.

Brushing up: Addenbrooke's patient Edel Pinnock has organised an exhibition of his work

Artist's 'thank you' to hospital

A GRATEFUL artist who believes he owes his life to staff at Addenbrooke's Hospital in Cambridge has received overwhelming support for a charity exhibition which opens next weekend.

Edel Pinnock, who is in his 60s and has eight grandchildren, was diagnosed with prostate cancer in 2003 and decided to organise the exhibition to say thank you to staff at the oncology ward and to raise some money to help their work with other patients.

The exhibition of his paintings and sculptures at the East Town Park Visitors

Centre in Coupsals Road, Haverhill, opens to the public daily from 10am to 5pm from Sunday and will close at 4pm on Friday, May 22. Entry is free and Mr Pinnock intends to make a sizeable donation from the proceeds of work sold at his exhibition.

Mr Pinnock moved to London from Jamaica in the early 1960s and came to Haverhill in 1966. He played a major role in the promotion of arts in the town and helped form the Haverhill and District Art Association, which was the precursor to the Haverhill Festival.

He is now in remission after receiving radical radiotherapy and treatment at the hospital and is very grateful to all the firms and individuals have sponsored the exhibition.

"I am fortunate to still be here to do this because of the excellent support I received from the hospital. I want to say a big thank you to everyone within the community who has supported me with sponsorship, it has been incredible."

Donations and cheques should be made payable to Addenbrooke's Oncology Endowment 9056 or for more information, contact Mr Pinnock on 07773 561053.

Free poop scoop bags

DOG owners who refuse to use "poop scoop" bags are being targeted.

The move is the second phase of the No Excuses anti-litter campaign by Forest Heath District Council and St Edmundsbury Borough Council.

Staff will be handing out free poop scoop bags to dog walkers taking part in a charity event tomorrow. The event, Paws in the Park, to be staged at Brandon Country Park, will raise money for St Nicholas Hospice Care.

Keith Marley, head of environmental services at Forest Heath, said: "Considerate dog owners do clear up after their pets. Our campaign is aimed at the minority who do not pick up their dog's mess."

"The council spends time and resources clearing dog mess and this costs everyone money."

Scooter sound fundraiser

SCOOTER fans are organising a fund-raising disco on Saturday night in aid of St Nicholas Hospice.

Haverhill Circle Scooter Club will hold the event at the Mount Pleasant Club in Withersfield Road, featuring music from the '60s, as well as Northern soul and ska. The club is aiming to raise at least £500 from the event.

Bid to 'stop the clot' is a big hit

BY JOHN MORGAN

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A CAMPAIGN aiming to stop needless deaths from hospital-acquired blood clots has had a "phenomenal" response.

Stop the Clot was launched in February by the charity Anti-Coagulation Europe and has been supported by the Weekly News.

MPs, hospital staff and celebrities from across the region have turned out to endorse the campaign, which could potentially save 310 lives a year in Cambridgeshire.

Each year, as many as 32,000 people in the UK die as a result of blood clots they get while in hospital. Prolonged periods of immobility mean hospital patients are at greater risk of developing blood clots.

Eve Knight, chief executive of Anti-Coagulation Europe, said: "There has been a phenomenal response to this campaign and we are absolutely delighted to have seen 10,494 visits to the campaign website, 544 calls to the campaign helpline, 1,440 calls for the information booklet and, most importantly, 29 out of 30 local hospitals fully embracing the Stop the Clot campaign and its call to action."

"The fantastic response seen in just 12 weeks demonstrates the importance of the health message we are spreading."

The risk of developing a hospital blood clot can be greatly reduced by ensuring all patients admitted to hospital undergo a simple blood clot risk assessment

– a quick series of questions the doctor will ask on admission to hospital – in line with Government recommendations.

Stop the Clot aims to raise awareness among patients and their carers in Cambridgeshire and encourages everyone admitted to hospital to request a risk assessment.

Mrs Knight said: "This year, there will be more than 13 million admissions into hospital and it is likely you will know one of these people."

"Spread the word about the risk of hospital-acquired blood clots and their prevention. Make sure you ask for a simple risk assessment when you or a loved one go into hospital – it could save a life."

To find out more visit www.stoptheclot.com or call 0800 694644.

Drivers turn Roman road into muddy racing track

BY JACK GROVE

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

TRAIL bikers and 4x4 drivers are wrecking a Roman road by using it as a race track, say farmers and nature lovers.

Walkers using the pathway, which runs between Wandlebury and Horseheath, say they are appalled at the damage caused by motorbikes and vehicles in wet weather and want them banned.

They claim rare wild flowers, grass verges and ancient hedges containing several breeds of butterfly are being destroyed by those who use the 1,800-year-old route as a rally track.

Several cars have also been set alight at the nature spot, which is popular with ramblers and horse riders, while vehicle access has also led to several incidents of fly-tipping.

Members of the Friends of the Roman Road and Fleam Dyke, backed by local farmers, are collecting signatures in support of a vehicle ban for the road, which was built in the time of Emperor Hadrian.

Damage: a section of the pathway, once a Roman road, between Wandlebury and Horseheath.

Balsham farmer James Kiddy, who has repaired the road out of his own pocket, said: "It seems the muddier and wetter it is, the more these 4x4 enthusiasts like to drive on it.

"It's very frustrating to see them damage the road like this, especially as they often ask me to drag them out of the mud with my tractor.

"We tried barricading the road with a few logs, but the county council took them away. Now the road is almost impassable because it's so damaged.

"Even if we just shut it during the winter, it would make a massive difference."

The route is one of the few surviving Roman roads in Britain and is part of a track that leads from Colchester to the West Country.

Former county archaeologist Dr Alison Taylor, who has conducted excavations on the site, said: "It's quite unusual to have a Roman road because most of them have become modern tarmac roads.

"It was designed for horses and carts, as well as driving cattle, and is not suitable for heavy motorised vehicles.

"It was originally an Iron Age route built in the 1st century BC and then it became a Roman road. It's an important part of Cambridgeshire's history and shouldn't be churned up by motorists.

"Its unique character also means it has been untouched by farmers, so it's also home to many types of flora and fauna, which should be protected."

Relative foils robbery bid

POLICE believe an attempted distraction burglary was prevented when a relative arrived at the home of an elderly woman.

The incident happened at Glemsford, between Haverhill and Sudbury, last Thursday.

Two men called at the house of a woman in her 80s in New Cut at around 1.40pm. They pushed past her, saying there was a water leak and they needed to check the pressure.

They went into the kitchen with her but ran out of the house through the front door when a relative of the woman arrived.

They are described as white, of slim build, tall and in their 20s. One wore beige clothing, the other dark clothing.

Householders are reminded to check the ID of callers, not to let anyone in if they are unsure and call police.

Anyone with any information about this incident should contact Sudbury CID on (01284) 774100.

New charity is sought

A SUPERMARKET chain is inviting customers and colleagues to make nominations for a group to become the store's official charity partner.

The chosen charity will benefit through working in partnership with staff at Sainsbury's, Haverhill, to organise fundraising events, including charity collections and also through volunteering.

Residents can nominate a local charity up until May 26 by completing a form and submitting it into the 'Local Charity of the Year' voting box found at the front of the store. Sainsbury's will then draw up a shortlist.

Representatives from the three shortlisted charities will be asked to visit the store to talk to staff about what they do and how the Sainsbury's team could support them. The store's 'Local Charity of the Year' will be chosen from the shortlist and announced to customers in June. The store will then work with the charity throughout the year through volunteering and fundraising.

Store manager, Steve Venters, said: "By supporting a local charity, we can give something back to the community by helping with fundraising and volunteering.

"Clearly, it's important that we find a charity close to the hearts and minds of our customers and colleagues so I would encourage everyone to come in and vote."

Aaron gets on his bike for funds

FORMER Weekly News employee Aaron Castell is getting on his bike for a gruelling ride to aid a cancer charity on Saturday.

Aaron, 22, will be riding in the Etape Caledonia for Macmillan Cancer Support. It is being held in Perthshire and is the UK's only mass closed roads cycling event.

Aaron, of Chapple Drive, Haverhill, previously worked within the News's planning department in Milton, leaving to work at William Hill in Bury St Edmunds at Christmas and is now employed by Betfair in Stevenage as a Telbet operator.

Said Aaron: "Last year, I did the London Triathlon and after struggling with the swim, decided I would stay on dry land for the next challenge. I found out about this event as it is managed by the same people who manage the London Triathlon.

"I have been in training for more than two years. I used to regularly cycle to the offices in Milton and back, then to Bury and back when I worked for William Hill.

"Macmillan Cancer Support is the main charity sponsor of the event. It is a great charity, which does a great job in helping people deal with cancer and I would really like to help them."

Water usage in the spotlight

HAVERHILL primary schools are being encouraged to focus on water usage and sanitation as part of National Plughole Week.

The week aims to raise awareness of the lack of clean sanitation around the world.

Organisers have teamed up with Suffolk manufacturer, Challs International, which makes plughole cleaning products, and Oxfam to run two competitions, with the chance for the overall winning school to win a new flatscreen TV.

Children aged 4-7 can colour in a picture of a house and show where water is used for cooking, washing and other uses.

Junior pupils, aged 7-11, have been asked to complete a special project, showing how much water has been used in their home for one week and to suggest how water could be saved.

Holiday heaven: People expect better value for their money today.

DESPITE the reports of doom and gloom in the current economic climate a local travel agent has reported business is booming as customers look for a "different type of travel service".

Jennifer Bradnam runs her own travel business from home as part of award-winning travel company Travel Counsellors. She has seen her business go from strength to strength and believes the secret of her success is the fact that she can provide a unique level of personal service that cannot be matched in a High Street agency.

"There is no doubt that the current climate is having an effect on lots of businesses across the country, including travel agencies," says Jennifer. "However, as I operate differently from other travel agencies, my business seems to be bucking the trend."

Because Jennifer runs her business from home it means she can be available to her clients 24/7. Customers can book their travel arrangements from the comfort of their own homes without having to venture into a High Street shop and Jennifer can also meet up with her clients at a time to suit them.

Jennifer adds: "From my experience people are still booking holidays but want better value and a service that goes above and beyond. In terms of booking trends we are seeing that customers are booking closer to the time they want to travel, possibly because they want to hold onto their money for longer. They are also venturing further afield to non-Euro destinations and places like the Far East in order to get better value for money."

Jennifer has more than 14 years experience in the travel industry and uses the company's award-winning technology to provide customers with expert advice and great savings; from specialist areas such as tailor-made holidays, cruises and business travel to a simple flight or hotel booking.

Jennifer can also offer her customers' complete financial protection on their holiday bookings through the company's own financial trust, which gives much needed peace of mind in today's uncertain economic climate.

As Jennifer is part of a global travel company with more than 1,000 Travel Counsellors operating across seven countries it means she has constant support from the company's head office of more than 200 staff, as well as access to a worldwide network of travel experts that she can turn to for information and advice should she need it.

Care support: from MP Richard Spring. CP

MP's bid to get lives back

MP Richard Spring, is giving his support to help the two million cancer survivors living in the UK "get their lives back".

Mr Spring promised to campaign for better cancer services at a House of Commons reception hosted by Macmillan Cancer Support.

The cancer charity is looking to raise awareness of the difficulties cancer patients face in getting their lives back after a life-threatening disease.

Many experience emotional problems, side effects such as severe fatigue or memory loss, or find it hard to get back to work, pay the bills or start a family.

Mr Spring said: "There are two million people living in the UK today who have had a cancer diagnosis and this number is rising by 3 per cent every year. They will live with the disease or the consequences of their treatment for the rest of their lives.

"That's why health and social care services need to start doing more to support this growing population and why I'm backing Macmillan's campaign to help the two million cancer survivors get their lives back."

Ciarán Devane, Macmillan's Chief Executive, spoke at the event which was attended by over 150 MPs, peers, cancer policy makers and charities.

He said: "Cancer survivors tell Macmillan they feel abandoned after treatment and need more support. We are delighted that so many MPs are committed to working with us to improve the quality of life of people living with or after cancer. Cancer is no longer an automatic death sentence but it shouldn't be a life sentence either."

Macmillan provides help and support for anyone affected by cancer. For more information call its helpline on 0800 500800 or visit www.macmillan.org.uk

Teens quizzed over policing

MORE than 80 per cent of children in Suffolk feel safe in the area where they live, according to new results from a police survey.

So far 1,200 13 to 18 year olds have filled in the online questionnaire which was launched in January with the aim of giving them more of a say about policing in the county.

Chief Constable Simon Ash said the

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

force had received responses from 29 of the 38 schools invited to take part, and added: "The response has been excellent. Results are being analysed by our consultation team and each school will receive their own figures.

"The findings countywide are extremely interesting and will be very useful. Results showed that the most common form of bullying is verbal, closely followed by psychological bullying. Those who took part also feel the main policing challenge is youth related issues, followed closely by anti-social behaviour.

Urging young people from across the county to take part and fill in the survey online, he said: "The information it provides is vital. The views of young people really matter to us."

The young persons' survey is available online at either www.suffolk.police.uk or www.suffolkpoliceauthority.org.uk

Suffolk residents of all ages can also give their views on policing by taking part in the public survey, which is also available on the websites listed above.

For more information, please contact the consultation unit at Suffolk police headquarters on (01473) 613500 or send an email to consultation@suffolk.pnn.police.uk

Memories flood in as store hits 140th

CELEBRATION plans for Sainsbury's 40th birthday in Haverhill have brought back fond memories for many people, including an 80-year-old who started working for the company before supermarkets were even thought of!

The Haverhill Weekly News recently asked readers to share their memories as part of Sainsbury's 140th anniversary celebrations and many have come forward with their recollections.

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

The company has asked one customer to cut the store's birthday cake, which will be offered to customers over the bank holiday weekend.

The octogenarian started working for Sainsbury's in 1948 and has many stories of the changes in food shopping – including rationing – over the past five decades.

One customer found a photograph of herself on the opening day of Sainsbury's former Jubilee Walk shop.

Another produced a newspaper cutting from 1973, asking customers what they thought of Sainsbury's and one lady wrote that she saved 73p on her weekly groceries by shopping there.

At the time, tins of peaches were 12p, and cheese 24p per lb!

Sainsbury's will be holding a celebratory weekend at its Hanchett End store over the Bank Holiday, with a huge birthday cake to cut and share, commemorative free bags for life and fresh butter served from the delicatessen counter – just like it was on opening day in 1969.

Theatre groups fight it out in festival contest

THREE award-winning theatre groups will contest the quarter-final of the 2009 All-England Theatre Festival at Haverhill Arts Centre on Sunday from 7pm.

All have been crowned the leading companies at first-round, one-act play festivals in the region and compete for a single place in the semi-finals.

The winning play from the Cambridge Festival was Clavering Players' production of Tissue by Louise Page and the Bedfordshire winner was Wilstead Players' production of Lucy in the Sky by Tony Layton. Wilstead won the quarter-final at Haverhill in 2008.

The trio of companies is completed by the top-ranking youth group in the region, Stagefright from Harlington, Bedfordshire, who are presenting It's All in the Mind, a new play by their director Andra Bishop.

Keith Thompson of the Guild of Drama Adjudicators will judge the plays, while the awards at the end of the evening will be presented by Brian Freeman, the chairman of the eastern area of the theatre festival.

The evening begins at 7pm and tickets are £8 or £6 for concessions.

Tickets can be booked through the arts centre box office and on (01440) 714140.

■ The popular Centre Stage Company returns to the arts centre from 7.30pm tonight until Saturday with Dead Man's Hand, directed by Pam Lawrence.

This thriller seems at first glance to be the usual "who-dunnit", in the style of Agatha Christie; with two couples lured to a remote Italian villa with some fatal consequences. But nothing is what it seems in this witty drama with an intriguing final twist unravelling the real reason for the whole charade.

■ An evening of music is being lined up at the arts centre at 8pm next Thursday featuring three of the world's finest and most acclaimed acoustic guitar soloists.

Acoustic Archery with YouTube sensation Andy McKee, Johnny Dickinson and Tony McManus, employ a wide range of virtuoso techniques from plucking, bowing, finger-picking, strumming, tapping and drumming to perform a repertoire drawn primarily from their own compositions.

■ The guest demonstrator for the Haverhill Flower Club on Monday at 7.30pm is David Thompson with Pot Luck.

■ Emily Blunt, Rupert Friend and Jim Broadbent star in The Young Victoria (PG) playing at the centre on Monday at 1.30pm and next Friday at 7.45pm.

From acclaimed writer Julian Fellowes (Gosford Park) it tells the eagerly anticipated story of Queen Victoria's early rise to power. Emily Blunt gives a stunning performance in the title role, tracing Victoria's journey from being an object of a royal power struggle to her romantic courtship with Prince Albert.

Look out for Princess Beatrice in the opening scene, thanks to her mothers' involvement in the making of the film.

■ Polish film The Collector (15), is the story of a hard-nosed debt collector and his transformation into a real human being. Luceck, mercilessly repossesses anything from vital hospital equipment to a statue of the Virgin Mary. After one particularly heartless episode he realises the error of his ways, but then finds that no one will believe he's a changed man.

The film is being shown on Tuesday at 7.45pm with English subtitles.

Your financial picture is mixed. Taking on an unorthodox job will bring in extra cash, but you'll have to restrain yourself from spending it all. Friends have a way of taking you into costly endeavours. Instead of caving in to peer pressure, be content with what you have.

Taking charge of a group will bring both pleasure and pain. On the plus side, you'll be able to put your hard earned knowledge to good use. Unfortunately, some will be jealous of your success. Don't bother trying to win them over. Keep doing the best job you can.

Resist the urge to use social status for personal gain. If you're trying to win somebody's heart, it's better to keep a low profile. Your beloved isn't impressed by flashy gestures; he or she wants to know the real you. Try a casual date where you can just sit and talk for hours.

Ribtickling trio

LAUGHS are sure to ring out when the Cambridge Belfry Hotel hosts three top acts as part of its latest Comedy Club offering later this month. The Cambourne venue's show, on Friday May 29, features an eclectic mix of gagsters including former TV show hosts, celebrity poker players and a 737 pilot turned Crimewatch extra. The night's MCs are Northern lasses Chambers and Nettleton, stars of the BBC's Funny Business and Liquid News as well as Sky Poker and described as the "only female double act cutting it on the live comedy circuit". Next up is Richard Morton, who has featured on Jack Dee's Saturday Night spectacular over on ITV and is a winner of the Time Out Comedy Award. The night's headline act is Harry Denford, a full-on "Saff London geezer" who takes his audiences to a bizarre world of stone cladding, gold sovereign rings and Essex caravans. In real life Harry is a fully qualified commercial pilot who flew Boeing 737's and appeared as an extra on Crimewatch before trying stand-up. Doors open for the over-14s only gig at 7.30pm and the jokes start flying from 9pm. Tickets are priced at £20 including a two-course meal or £18 for members, as well as £14 for just the show. To book call the ticket hotline on (01954) 714600 or go online and visit www.haheehhe.com

Featuring The Searchers, The Merseybeats, Wayne Fontana and special guest John Walker of the Walker Brothers, the Solid Silver 60s show promises to take audiences back to the "Summer of Love" via a chart-topping medley of nostalgic 60s pop. The show plays the Cambridge Corn Exchange on Friday, May 22, with the music starting at 7.30pm. Tickets priced at £17.50-£21.50, plus £1.50 booking fee, are available now by calling the box office on (01223) 357851 or going online and visiting www.cornex.co.uk

Save garden money during credit crunch

The credit crunch has affected some sponsors of this year's Chelsea Flower Show, with the number of main show gardens being reduced from a bumper crop of 22 last year to just 13.

However, award-winning garden designer, Sarah Eberle, has created three fun credit crunch gardens at short notice (costing £5,000 each), to fill the space Fleming's left when it withdrew its show garden due to the bush fires in Australia in February. Money-saving visitors should be inspired by Sarah's creations, The Overdrawn Artist's Garden, The Off-Shore Garden and The Banker's Garden, which show how to create entertaining, environmentally responsible gardens on a low budget.

The gardens feature hard materials, furniture and other items made from things found at the local scrap-yard, while environmental messages include water harvesting and urban drainage.

Sarah, who runs her own business from Hampshire, says there are many things gardeners can do to save money during the credit crunch. "Use your imagination and think outside the box as to how you could use materials, making your garden more personalised," she suggests. "People can stamp their own personality on their garden. "It's much better to have something charming and slightly more informal than trying to do

by Hannah Stephenson

something that the professional landscaper would do." For those who want a selection of new plants, but don't want to have to pay a lot for them, Sarah advises hosting a garden party. "Invite your friends around and ask them to bring plants instead of wine. You can always drink elderflower cordial instead. "Alternatively, visit your local summer fete, which always has a plant stall and swap with friends if you have to lift and divide clumps of different plants." When choosing plants, she says anything slow-growing and evergreen is going to be more expensive. "Choose plants which are naturally prolific as they may grow quickly and self seed." She recommends grasses which can be grouped together and can give you real value for money. They'll also look fantastic in small urban gardens. "You can make whole gardens out of grasses and cut different lengths into patterns," Sarah says. "Draw a couple of ground lines, mow them and come up with something really interesting." If you are after colour, try seeded flower mixes in urban situations, she advises.

"Get a load of seed and scatter it for a wonderful blanket of colours. Sow seeds of annuals, which you can change each year, and will give a much more natural effect than bedding plants."

Don't overspend on trying to achieve a particular look, like over-patterning paving by giving it a brick edge, which may be unnecessary.

"Although details are important, overall it's the quality of the space which is paramount and that comes from personality, comfort and feeling appropriate to the user."

There are other techniques you can use to save money.

Award-winning horticulturalist and TV gardener Chris Beardshaw says limit yourself to one new plant each month.

"That way you will have something new to admire and, if you choose one for each month of the year, you can be sure that your garden will have year-long interest."

"Take advantage of any multi-purchase offers, as planting in blocks makes a bold impact and fills an area quickly and cheaply."

Chris, who has teamed up with Grant's Whisky to create blueprints for the perfect credit crunch garden on www.grantswhisky.com/garden afterhours recommends people shop at nurseries rather than supermarket-style garden centres. "Often there is more variety or more unusual plants on offer and you have less non-gardening items to distract you into spending more money."

"Don't fool yourself into thinking you need every gardening gadget under the sun. Stick to the basics like a good spade and fork, a decent pair of secateurs and a knife and limit everything else as you can often get by just as well without it."

■ The RHS Chelsea Flower Show, sponsored by Marshalls, runs from May 19-23 at The Royal Hospital, Chelsea, London SW3. To book tickets, visit www.rhs.org.uk/flowershows or call 0844 2090363.

BEST OF THE BUNCH

Dwarf phlox
These pretty low-growing plants provide rockeries and scree beds with plenty of colour at this time of year in many shades of pink, blue and white, tumbling over walls or creating flat carpets of flowers. They are easy to grow and will last a few years if given a little TLC. The most popular is the carpeting P.

subulata (moss phlox), which grows to just 3in (9cm) and spreads around 45cm (1.5ft), flowering in April and May.

Good named varieties include "G.F. Wilson", which is pale purple, "Apple Blossom", a pink variety and "Temiscaming", a red type. Phlox thrives in any well-drained, moisture-retentive soil in full sun.

Top treat from Blur guitarist

FANS of the mighty Graham Coxon were given a treat at the Soul Tree when the Blur guitarist showcased his seventh solo album, The Spinning Top, to an intimate crowd.

In something of a departure for the musical maestro, Coxon gave in to a folk flirtation, with nods to such greats as the late, great John Martyn.

And a sublime night was made that much sweeter when Damon Albarn joined the expectant audience, after settling his differences with Coxon over an Eccles cake last year.

The tiny venue may have frustrated some audience members as Coxon decided to play much of the set sitting down. And when one of the crowd told our man Gra to stand up and he politely told them to "shut it", it seemed like some had slightly missed the point. With more musical talent than you can shake a stick at, Coxon's folk odyssey is an unmitigated success. Who cares if he sits down for what he describes as the "fiddly stuff"? Not me.

Kicking off with album opener Look Into The Light, we were treated to This House and In The Morning, all great nods to the aforementioned Martyn. But things really got going when Coxon rocked out with If You Want Me – a flirtatious little number which gave him the chance to get a grip on a phat noise.

A short break and Coxon closed with folk legend Davey Graham's version of Elizabeth Cotton's Oh Babe, It Ain't No Lie.

Next time I see him, I'll be one of thousands witnessing the Blur reunion on Glastonbury's Pyramid stage. Funny old world, innit?

Why sell the traditional way?

Get Estate Agents to value it and put it on the market.

Show people around the property (mostly "nosy parkers" & sightseers).

If no offers received after 2 or 3 months, reduce price.

Show more people around.

Eventually accept an offer at between 5 & 10% off the advertised price.

Hope the sale doesn't fall through (over 30% of sales don't reach completion).

Once price agreed, wait a further 3 months for sale to complete.

Work out how many £000s it has cost you in reducing the price, making mortgage payments, paying Estate Agents fees and legal fees since you started the process (on average, 7 months ago...)

Sell your property the CXG way...

The simple alternative

- Pay no Estate Agent's fees
- Pay no Legal fees
- No further mortgage payments
- Have cash within days (Instead of months)

Ace used car alternatives are well worth looking over

USED Car Expert magazine editor Matthew Tumbridge gives his opinion – and the alternatives – to the Government's scrappage scheme.

"So, the Government will give you £1,000 and car companies will match it, if you agree to swap your 10-year-old car for a new one," says Tumbridge.

"That's a nice deal for some. But you have to be in a position to spend at least £5,000, and that figure is only going to buy the smallest kind of car.

"It seems to me that there are quite a lot of bigger, better-equipped used cars that British motorists can buy for £5,000, which have lost – so I would argue the buyer has saved – more than £2,000 in depreciation."

Here are three notable examples:

■ Renault Laguna: "Complicated, but safe and comfortable, it has lots of equipment – but that means plenty to go wrong, too. There are lots around, and prices have been falling fast so it is good value," says Tumbridge.

Used Car Expert magazine prices a 2005 Renault Laguna 16v Expression 1.8, with average mileage of around 37,600, at between £3,175 and £4,226.

■ Peugeot 307: "Roomy, and becoming affordable, it is not perfect, but has bags of room for the family, especially the estate. Increasing numbers around help push down prices," Tumbridge says.

Used Car Expert magazine prices a 2005 Peugeot 307 1.4, with average mileage of around 33,500, at between £3,500 and £4,700.

■ Nissan Almera: "A worthy car that is cheap to buy and run, it is an often-overlooked model which has good equipment, handling, and engines. They are usually bargain-priced, so you can't go wrong," Tumbridge says.

Used Car Expert magazine prices a 2005 Nissan Almera 1.5, with average mileage of around 27,600, at between £3,573 and £4,765.

Nissan Almera: Cheap to buy and run.

Complicated, but safe: The Renault Laguna.

THE new Peugeot 407 continues to improve with the arrival of the latest 2.0-litre HDi FAP Euro 5 spec engine, capable of 50.4mpg, 150g/km of CO2 with power increased to 140bhp.

Latest versions of 407 now benefit from a multitude of further technical developments – all designed to enhance the overall driving enjoyment – that include a revised 1.6-litre HDi 110bhp engine with a combined fuel economy of 57.6mpg with CO2 emissions of 129g/km.

A key factor that ensures efficient optimisation is the major engine recalibration carried out on the 1.6-litre HDi FAP unit to obtain a significant reduction of emissions. Achieving 129g/km of CO2 has been obtained without any change to gear ratios, so performance levels and acceleration remain unaffected.

Another supplementary contribution to the HDi 110 engine's fuel efficient behaviour is the adoption of electro-hydraulic power steering. The power steering is controlled by a hydraulic electro-pump unit in which assistance varies according to the speed of the car, the speed of rotation of the steering and the temperature of the steering fluid.

This steering system, already in place on other models in the 407 range (except six cylinder models), optimises fuel consumption compared to traditional hydraulic steering powered by the engine. In addition, due to the permanent adaptation of the force to be supplied, it offers the driver maximum steering accuracy as well as excellent feedback, while at the same time facilitating manoeuvres at low speed.

Finally, the latest 407 is now equipped with new Michelin Energy Saver 205/60 R16 H tyres which significantly reduce rolling friction through advanced tyre construction.

With this improved specification, the latest

407 further strengthens its customer appeal by combining performance with economy and lower taxation. In addition to its elegant and attractive appearance, still distinctive in its segment, the continuity of its residual value, its durability and its competitive overall operating costs, the 407 continues to be acclaimed for its excellent road holding and its undiminished ability to combine active safety and driving enjoyment with a high level of comfort and convenience.

Prices for the 407 Saloon start with the 'S' trim 2.0-litre Bioflex petrol at £17,745. The 1.6-litre HDi 110 (129g/km) is an extra £1,000 at £18,745. The business SR model with Peugeot's Connect Navigation, 16-inch alloys and Bluetooth hands-free telephone is just £1,000 above the S, while the SPORT adds half-leather, front/rear parking aid, and auto wipers, folding mirrors and headlamps.

Details at www.peugeot.co.uk.

The Peugeot 407: Now with lower emissions, better economy and improved equipment.

End of the road

for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF)

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle. That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD). A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility.

We pay up to £100

Champion Harry is on song with fresh tournament victory

HAVERHILL Tennis Club held two tournaments for 20 children, aged nine and under.

In the under-eights' mixed singles, newly-crowned Cambridgeshire county champion, Harry Wendelken was a tough challenge for everyone.

Zoe Foulds, Teddy Villiers, Freddie Gower and Luke Moule were all taking part in their first tournament. Foulds and Gower had a marathon match with the latter just coming through 15-13.

This victory put him into the semi-final against Zach Fellows, who played some great shots, winning 10-4 to reach his first final. Wendelken made his way through the competition, losing only a handful of points in each match.

Fellows battled hard with Wendelken in the final, but the county champion won through 10-1.

It was the fifth tournament Wendelken had won this year, after victories at Cambridge Grand Slam County Finals, Hertfordshire county individual tournament, Gosling Tennis Centre at Welwyn Garden City, Newmarket Lawn Tennis Club and Cambridge Lawn Tennis Club.

In the nine and under girls' singles, Georgina Lister and Lois Newlands represented Haverhill, but it was the girls from Ipswich, who won through after some tough battles.

Harriet Petley won all her matches and Louis Dickman was second.

In the nine and under boys' singles, there was some great competition.

Joseph Morley had some close matches, losing all three by the closest possible margin.

Tommy Gower had a great battle with Ethan Webb to see who qualified out of their group for the semi-final with Gower winning over three tie-breaks.

Alfie Kennard, Greg Birch and Toby Fellows were the other qualifiers for the semi-finals.

Fellows and Kennard had a great match with the latter taking a close first tie-break 7-5. Fellows reversed this score in the second and came out winner in the third 7-3. Birch won the other semi-final 7-1, 7-1. Kennard beat Gower to take third place.

Fellows and Birch played a close final with Fellows winning the first tie-break 7-4.

Birch was up in the second 5-1 and the match looked like it was going to a deciding tie-break, but Fellows kept his cool and won the next six points to take the match 7-5.

CRICKET ROUND-UP

Webb's knock seals fine win

HAVERHILL won by three wickets at home to Witham in their Marshall Hatchick Two Counties Championship, Division Two match on Saturday.

Despite having former England Test star Chris Silverwood in their attack, Haverhill's early bowling came in for some punishment as Witham rattled up more than 60 from their opening 10 overs.

The introduction of Simon Youngs into the front line slowed the run rate considerably as the visitors eventually finished on 232 for 8 with Sam Powell taking three wickets.

Haverhill openers Dave Godwin and Scott Webb shared in a partnership of 74 to set them on their way.

Adam Dellar (24) and Powell (25) added useful runs, but, after wickets fell cheaply, Webb's 84 saw Haverhill home on 233 for 7.

■ Arvid Gunderson hit 64 as Weston Colville's batting revival continued against Barnack in their Tucker Gardner Cambs & Hunts Premier League, Division Two match on Saturday.

Trevor Westley (41) and Joe

Robins (33) also did well as Colville reached 221 for 8.

Matt Daniels (3 for 39) helped restrict Barnack, but stubborn resistance ensured a draw with the innings ending on 150 for 8.

■ Martin Giles was the star of the show for Horseheath as he shared a 90-run partnership and claimed a five-wicket haul to lead them to victory at Barrington in CCA Senior League, Division One.

The visitors made a disastrous start as they slipped to 40 for 4, but captain Gary Ellis' 54 and Mick Ketteridge's 35 saw them make a recovery. Robbie Ketteridge (56) and Giles (35) then put on 90 together to help Horseheath register 234 all out.

The host's chances of victory suffered an instant blow when destructive batsman Mark Ferrari was removed by Ellis with the first ball of the innings.

And, although Bob Cripps hit 63 and Mark Smith compiled 34, Horseheath's skipper went on to take 3 for 30 and spinner Giles claimed 5 for 62 to leave Barrington all out for 154.
